Animals Admitted into the Urgent Foster Care Program

Acceptance rate into the program in January was a bit slow as we experienced an uptick in requests in December 2021.

Assisting an Urgent Care Foster Parent

A Pet Parent was facing uncertain housing. Their pets experience separation anxiety and required a quiet household with someone who is home consistently.

While the pets were in foster care, their foster parent received support from our training team on to provide them enrichment to help them cope with separation anxiety.

Unfortunately, during their foster period, the foster parent had a medical emergency. The Urgent Care team was prepared to also welcome the foster parent's pets into the program, but luckily it did not come to that.

The foster parent recovered and their pets were returned, and they continued to care for the Urgent Care animals until the pet parent found suitable housing for their pet's needs.

Average Score of Client Survey questions

Every Urgent Foster Care client is encouraged to take a survey once they leave the program. Most clients are extremely happy with the program and particularly enjoy receiving regular updates from foster families. It gives them a peace of mind.

Reuniting Two Old Friends

A Pet Parent was hospitalized for a medical treatment. Because they had limited social connections outside of their pet, they did not know who else to turn to.

While being separated from each other was emotionally challenging, the Pet Parent commented that knowing that their pet was being cared for allowed them to recoup at a timeline that allowed for a full recovery.

The Pet Parent and their pet are both seniors. The pet had a medical history that might compromise their ability to get adopted.

We're happy to share that after being away from each other for a short period of time, these two old friends were reunited.
